In this case study, CPL Business Consultants assessed the potential for various mineral additives used as mycotoxin binders in animal feed. CPL produced a detailed report on the various product categories, their properties, benefits, trials data and the companies producing them.

The report included a strategy to diversify and enhance the existing product platform and portfolio and also information on how the client should position its products relative to the competition.

The cost and performance of mycotoxin binders vary by their source and physiochemical attributes. Therefore, CPL covered the various strategies used to differentiate these products and improve their performance.
