In this case study, CPL was engaged by a food ingredients company to provide a sector analysis of the fruit preparations market. CPL's report allowed them to make an informed decision on whether or not to enter this market.

Information on producers included the prices of their products, the service they offered to their customers, the requirements of their customers, the trends in the industry, the characterisation of the industry, success factors, barriers to entry etc. CPL also investigated product and service expectations and typical usage levels, and total quantities of fruit preparations used. We also examined the fruit preparation market dynamics, including its direction, size and growth.

CPL drew conclusions from these data and made strategic recommendations concerning the business models, acquisitions, markets, players and products, success factors and barriers to entry.
